New training places

REGION -Nursing and other clinical specialists are hoped to get a boost from the Federal Government as part of it's Rural Health Workforce Strategy, with a promised 1000 new nursing training places Australia wide every year.

A clinical training subsidy will be given to students to ensure they can get proper access to specialist training including primary, community and mental health, aged care and the private sector.

The subsidy is aimed to help minimise the costs involved in clinical training placements for health providers.
